Dear Music Teacher:

Welcome to the 31st season of the Boulder Bach Festival. We've titled this year's festival Brandenburg and More. In addition to this year's concerts, we again will present two programs for children and their families. The Kids for Bach concert will be in February followed by a Bach for Kids interactive session with music director Rick Erickson and Festival artists in March. This letter provides you with information about Kids for Bach.

Kids for Bach, Sunday, February 12, 2012, 2:00 p.m., gives students, ages 6 to 18, an opportunity to perform in a free public concert. This performance will be held in Boulder Public Library's Canyon Theater, an excellent small concert hall. The enclosed application form provides all relevant information you will need to submit entries. You may also download the application and letter at <http://www.boulderbachfestival.org/index.php/bach-for-kids>. Please make as many copies as you need for your students who are interested in applying. A panel of area music teachers and performers will judge and select from the entries we receive by the deadline indicated on the application.

This year we are pleased to offer each student performer a certificate of merit as well as one adult ticket to the March Festival concert of their choice. In addition, each teacher who submits one or more entries will receive one adult ticket to the March Festival concert of their choice.

Thank you for all that you do to promote music education and performance opportunities for the young people of Boulder and Broomfield Counties. We hope you will include Kids for Bach as part of their experience.

Sincerely,

Charlotte Corbridge, Coordinator
